

Hi folks, I think this story should be called “Adding Insult to Injury” because of the current pandemic and all the ensuing restrictions we must live with. Of course, kidding aside, these restrictions are necessary given the severity of Covid 19 and its various mutations. Anyway, this next story is called:

New Rules for Old Folks

On her first day at the seniors’ complex, the new manager addressed all the residents pointing out some of her rules, and one in particular.

"The women’s sleeping quarters are out of bounds to the men, and the men’s sleeping quarters are out of bounds to the women. Anyone caught breaking this rule will be fined $20, and anyone caught breaking this rule a second time will be fined $60, and being caught a third time, it will cost you a fine of $180. Are there any questions?"

An old gal in the back row stood up and asked, "How much for a season pass?"
